Chamber Endorses In March Elections

The Redondo Beach Chamber of Commerce Political Action Committee (RBCCPAC) is pleased to announce its endorsements for the upcoming March municipal election. RBCCPAC spent months doing due diligence, researching, and interviewing all candidates willing to meet with the RBCCPAC Board of Directors. RBCCPAC is committed to identifying candidates and leaders who support policies that will help Redondo Beach move in a direction of progress that creates a strong local economy and great quality of life for Redondo Beach residents.

THE RBCCPAC IS IN STRONG SUPPORT OF MEASURE B AND WHAT IT MEANS TO THE FUTURE OF REDONDO BEACH.

- The passage of Measure B ensures the decommissioning and removal of the AES Power Plant, while establishing zoning guidelines that will allow for a more vibrant waterfront.
- Measure B does not in any way approve a project on the property.
- The failure of Measure B preserves the site for industrial use, whether that is a new power plant, or another industrial approved business.
- Measure B is the one opportunity Redondo Beach has to tear down the power plant and change the future of our city for generations.

IN DISTRICT 3, RBCCPAC HAS ELECTED TO ENDORSE CHRISTIAN ANTHONY HORVATH IN HIS BID FOR CITY COUNCIL

- Christian is a local small business owner who has a long standing history of serving his community.
- He has served on many boards including the Redondo Beach Chamber of Commerce, North Redondo Beach Business Association, and the Advisory Board of the King Harbor Boating Foundation.

Chair MESSAGE

By Michael G. Jackson
Chair of the Board

Chairman’s Report for February, 2015

The Redondo Beach Chamber of Commerce has been a member of the South Bay Association of Chambers of Commerce (SBACC) since it was first founded in the early 1990’s. The SBACC was formed during the first round of base closures that threatened to permanently shut down the Space & Missiles Command (SMC) at the Los Angeles Air Force Base. Twenty-five years later, the SBACC remains very active as the organization that represents 17 South Bay chambers of commerce to advocate regional issues impacting the business community.

As Chair of the SBACC for 2015, I have already laid out my priorities for the association this year as we move quickly into high gear. They include the following regional issues:

• LAX Modernization
• Los Angeles and Long Beach Port Improvements
• Base Closure at Los Angeles Air Force Base
• Workforce Investment Funding at SoCal ROC
• Bay Delta Conservation Plan
• Energy

The closure of the L.A. Air Force Base in El Segundo sits at the top of the list as our South Bay economy depends on the $8 billion in federal defense program funding that is generated out of SMC. Most all of our South Bay space & defense firms depend on this funding, and we fear many will follow the base if it is closed and relocated to another state.

Former Redondo City Councilman & community leader, John Parsons, who passed away last year, was the tip of the spear that has allowed the base to remain in El Segundo untouched ever since the first attempt to close it. However, today, because of reductions in federal defense spending due to sequestration and the increased efforts on the war on terror, rumors abound of another round of base closures that will most likely threaten SMC once again.

Redondo Beach Library Adds Business Center Database

The Redondo Beach Public Library has recently added several electronic resources that should be of special interest to the local business community.

In January, two online databases from EBSCO were made available to Library cardholders—the Legal Information Reference Center and the Small Business Reference Center. Both databases provide full-text periodicals and reference books that address a wide range of legal and business issues. Many of the full-text reference books are provided through Nolo, a popular publisher of legal information for consumers and small businesses.

The Library has also added several new modules to the online ReferenceUSA database. The new US Business Historical Module allows users to access information on businesses going back to 2003. The information can be searched by company, industry, geographic area, or address. The U.S. New Businesses module provides users the ability to search for brand new businesses and new business locations by business name, address, phone, business type by SIC or NAICS, geographic location, and age of the record. The U.S. New Movers/ New Homeowners module allows users to search for New Movers and New Homeowners by name, address, residence type, age, income, mortgage type, move distance, and move date.

Additionally, ReferenceUSA’s new Data Visualization feature allows users to create exportable pie or bar charts and to view data in the form of color-coded heat maps.

In addition to these new online information sources, the Library offers periodical and newspaper databases; Mango Languages, a database for learning foreign languages; and a Testing and Education Resource Center offering practice tests and test prep eBooks for college entrance and licensing exams.

All of these databases can be accessed from home with a Redondo Beach Public Library Card. Redondo Beach residents or anyone enrolled at a school in Redondo Beach can apply for a card online in order to access the Library’s electronic resources. Information can be found under the “Apply for a Library Card” tab on the Library’s website. The card can be upgraded to full borrowing privileges in person at either the Main Library or the North Branch. Instructions are available on the website.
Governor’s Budget Plan Saves, Pays Down Debt

Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. has outlined a “carefully balanced” budget plan for 2015–16, demonstrating his commitment to keep the state on a steady fiscal path.

This week, California Finance Director Michael Cohen presented a detailed analysis of the proposed budget at a California Chamber of Commerce Luncheon Forum.

The same day, a report from the nonpartisan Legislative Analyst’s Office described the Governor’s budget priorities as “generally prudent.”

In his presentation, Cohen discussed budget priorities, including continued investments in key programs, saving money in the rainy day fund and paying down state debts.

“It’s a good budget that’s still in balance… we are continuing to invest in the key programs that we’ve made major decisions on over the last few years, but we are also saving money and paying down our debts,” Cohen told luncheon attendees.

SAVING MONEY/PAYING DOWN DEBT

Director Cohen pointed to CalChamber’s efforts as key to securing passage of Proposition 2 last November. The measure amended the State Constitution to strengthen the requirement for a budget reserve and to pay down budget-related debt.

Cohen said the state’s rainy day fund will have a balance of $2.8 billion by the end of the year. Having the fund in place will obviate the need for higher taxes during the next recession.

“The way Proposition 2 works is that if capital gains continue to rise, if the stock market continues to do what it’s been doing the last few months, and that is certainly a possibility, more money will go into the rainy day fund,” Cohen explained.

This means an additional $1.2 billion from Proposition 2 funds will go to paying off loans from special funds and past liabilities from Proposition 98; the remaining $1 billion in deferrals to schools and community colleges will be repaid; and the last payment on the $15 billion in Economic Recovery Bonds borrowed to cover budget deficits from as far back as 2002 will be made. Finally, the money will allow the state to repay local governments $533 million in mandate reimbursements.

The result, says Cohen, is that a year from now, school finance will be back to a place where “when schools spend the money, they will receive the money in the same fiscal year.”

RETIREE HEALTH CARE

Previous budgets dealt with state pensions and teachers’ retirement. This year’s budget deals with the third piece of the state’s retirement liability—retiree health care costs. “If California does nothing, the unfunded liability will exceed $300 billion by 2047,” Cohen explained.

“That’s really the next major retirement liability the administration is...

Joe Hoefgen was named Redondo Beach city manager by a unanimous vote of the city council. Hoefgen has served as interim city manager since last April, and was appointed as city manager January 20, 2015.

Joe served as the community development director for three years and then as interim city manager for almost nine months, he felt it was a good fit for both him and the city.

Mike Witzansky was appointment assistant city manager. Mike Witzansky was serving as the city’s interim assistant city manager after Assistant City Manager Peter Grant left June 20, of last year.

“Mike has been with Redondo Beach for eight years and served first as Recreation and Community Services Director and as Public Works Director,” Hoefgen said in an email to My Redondo Beach. “He has played a key role in the organization throughout his time here.”

Las Vegas is a great example of how easily we accept things that don’t belong where they end up. Why would anyone build a resort destination in the middle of the desert? Once you shrug that one off and actually go there, it gets worse. Why is the Eiffel Tower down the street from New York City and a pyramid?

For reasons I can’t explain, there never seems to be any grand, opulent or monstrous project that doesn’t fit Vegas. The latest tacky casino just makes room for the next one and Vegas keeps dingding, donging, flashing and collecting money.

Redondo Beach has something in common with that monument to excess, 300 miles due east in the Nevada desert. We have a huge, monolithic concrete and steel structure that takes up a large chunk of prime real estate in our city and lots of people feel it doesn’t belong here. That may be where the similarity to Vegas ends.

Sure, you could say people who came here since the plant was built in the early 1900s, which is pretty much everyone who is here now, accepted it and got used to it. Even though we’re used to it, most people in the South Bay have questioned whether a power plant really belongs in our densely populated community.

Now it appears AES, the energy company that owns the power plant, has begun to ask the same question. Fortunately for the community, they seem to have found a way to get rid of the plant, create a vibrant new community within our city and structure a business deal that allows everyone to realize an economic benefit from the transition to new uses of the 50 acre property.

Think about that for a minute. Imagine taking a walk through the ten acres of open space that’s planned for the site or having dinner under the stars across from the marina. How about living and/or working in the proposed Harbor Village, a place where residents can walk or bike nearly anywhere they need to go.

On March 3rd, voters in Redondo Beach will have a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to take a huge step toward eliminating the power plant from our waterfront, forever. Passing Measure B will pave the way for a change to the current, restrictive zoning. The 50 acres of beachside land the plant sits on is currently zoned for a power plant and a park. Measure B will allow residential, commercial, hotel and open space uses of the property.

We can learn something else from Las Vegas. The history of that city is filled with big dreamers who brought exciting ideas about what should be built, when it should be built and where it should be built.

Look at Vegas today and you’ll see some of the results of those big dreams. Sadly, many other dreams died before the first shovel was pushed into the desert sand.

Dreams that became reality and the ones that shriveled and died all had what, when and where figured out. The big difference is that the dreams we can see today all came from dreamers who knew what, when and where weren’t enough without knowing how their dreams would get built, specifically, how their dreams were going to get funded.

As we move down the path toward transforming the AES property into a source of beauty and pride for our community, dreamers will come forward with some big and exciting dreams. They may have great opinions about what, when and where. But the best chance the South Bay has to realize a plan that includes a strong “how” lies in the passage of measure B. Viva Redondo!

Leadership Redondo, Developing a New Generation of Stewards for Redondo Beach’s Future

January 9, 2015 was the kick-off for the latest Leadership Redondo program. The 2015 Class met for an all-day Orientation and training meeting at the Portofino Hotel & Yacht Club. They learned and laughed with Kathleen Terry, Leadership Trainer & Facilitator along with Craig Funabashi, the Program Coordinator, and a few Leadership Redondo Alumni.

The members of this year’s group were selected by an alumni committee based on a set criterion of: expressed desire to serve the community, demonstrated prior volunteer and or leadership involvement in Redondo Beach, demonstrated interest in and a willingness to understand the Redondo Beach community and demonstrated desire for professional and personal growth.

The first meeting certainly provided the opportunity for professional and personal growth. Participants learned about themselves, their communication styles, and each other. They focused on strengths over weaknesses and developing vision, not just solving problems.

The “typical” Leadership Redondo class includes members from many different facets of the city and community, and the 2015 Class is no exception. At the end of the day over 100 Leadership Redondo Alumni came to a Welcome Reception to welcome the Class of 2015, including past and present city officials. The enthusiasm was contagious, and a great time was had by all!

The primary goal of the Leadership Redondo program is to develop effective community leaders who will strengthen and transform the community. The class meets for one full day each month through October, and includes various field trips to see firsthand and learn about the inner workings of our community services, including opportunities to meet, interact and learn from various civic and municipal leaders. An overnight retreat is also on the agenda. In addition to all the exciting activities along the way, the program will culminate with a special project the group will choose to develop and complete the following year to benefit the community.

- He has participated in efforts to improve his neighbors’ quality of life by improving Ensenada and Perry Parks, and advocating for the “Living Streets” initiative for a more walkable and bike-friendly community.
- Currently, he serves as a Redondo Beach Harbor Commissioner, and has previously served on the Parks and Recreation and Youth Commissions.
- In 2011, Christian was awarded the Janet Johnson Spirit Award by his Leadership Redondo class.
- In 2013 Christian was named the Redondo Beach Chamber’s Volunteer of the Year.

The RBCCPAC Board determined that through his years of community service, track record of success, and immense city experience, he is the strongest candidate and will serve District 3 with experience and passion.

IN DISTRICT 5, RBCCPAC HAS ENDORSED CURRENT REDONDO BEACH SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER LAURA EMDEE

- Laura has been a champion of education and fiscal responsibility.
- Laura has been active in the community for over 20 years with organizations such as PTA, Boy Scouts, and AYSO.
- She led the charge to support school districts on Measure Q in 2008; and has helped save taxpayers more than $20 million during her tenure on the Redondo Beach School Board.

RBCCPAC has endorsed Laura due to her track record of success as a member of the school board and her keen insights and vision for Redondo Beach’s future.
5 Ways to Beat the Winter Blues

By Dr. Lisa Santora
BCHD Chief Medical Officer

The winter season (or at least our SoCal version of it) is upon us. The days get shorter, temperatures cool down, our normally crowded beaches empty and for some, depression and anxiety sets in. Known as the “winter blues,” this mood-altering season leaves some feeling depressed, unmotivated and lethargic. Luckily, you can fight back year-round with small lifestyle changes that have a big impact.

Care for your body. Exercising relieves stress and creates an overall sense of well-being by prompting your body to produce “feel good” chemicals. Sleep is also vitally important, so be sure you get enough rest.

Avoid alcohol and other drugs. People often drink or take drugs to self-medicate but in reality, drugs and alcohol only intensify problems. See local addiction resources at bchd.org.

Volunteer. Donating your talents and energy to help other people is deeply rewarding and a great way to establish social connections. It feels good to give back.

Eat a Healthy Diet. Nutrition, nutrition, nutrition … it can’t be stressed enough. Many mental illnesses are influenced by dietary factors, so be sure to eat well-rounded meals rich in fruits, vegetables and lean proteins.

Don’t be afraid to get help. Seeking help is a sign of strength – not weakness. Professional treatment can help you overcome mental illnesses and addiction. See a list of local resources at bchd.org.

Did you know? Women are up to eight times as likely as men to have seasonal affective disorder.

The SBACC intends to use the strength of its 17 local Chambers of Commerce from Westchester to Long Beach to engage its federal and state elected officials, city councils, community groups, and volunteer organizations to make sure we are there when it counts. I have already participated in several meetings to dust-off the org chart that created the first anti-base closure campaign and have started the process of working with Air Force officials at SMC.

Together, as a single voice, we can and will play larger than we are individually in support of a unified campaign.

“Business Spotlight”
Ten Thousand Villages - One of the World’s Largest Fair Trade

Ten Thousand Villages, located in Riviera Village, is a welcome addition to Redondo Beach. An exceptional source for unique handmade gifts, you’ll find intriguing, handcrafted gifts, jewelry, personal accessories, home decor, sculpture, textiles and other incredible finds representing diverse cultures from around the world.

Ten Thousand Villages is an independent nonprofit, charitable organization 501 (c) (3), with an independent, nine member board of directors. The store is run almost entirely by volunteers, and all sales revenue generated by Ten Thousand Villages and any surplus earned by operations is retained within Ten Thousand Villages. Surpluses are used to increase purchases from artisans and to finance the growth of Ten Thousand Villages retail network. All the artisans are paid in full by the time their product comes to the store.

As one of the world’s largest fair trade organizations and a founding member of the World Fair Trade Organization (WFTO), the company strives to improve the livelihood of tens of thousands of disadvantaged artisans in 38 countries. Ten Thousand Villages accomplishes this by establishing a sustainable market for handmade products in North America, and building long term buying relationships in places where skilled artisan partners lack opportunities for stable income. Product sales help pay for food, education, healthcare and housing for artisans who would otherwise be unemployed or underemployed.

Founded in 1946, the company has grown from the trunk of founder Edna Ruth Byler’s car to a network of more than 390 retail outlets throughout the United States selling Ten Thousand Villages products. The company encourages artisan partners to use environmentally friendly processes, sustainable natural resources and recycled materials to ensure each product offered has been crafted responsibly.

The store is located at 1907 S. Catalina Avenue, in Redondo Beach. Give handcrafted gifts from the heart this Valentine’s Day - from keepsake jewelry to candles and cards, there is something special for everyone you love. Check their website for more information about this unique store, and their humanitarian efforts: www.tenthousandvillages.com/redondobeach. We are proud to have them in our community!

looking to tackle,” Cohen said. “We are going to use everything in our tool kit to both contain health care cost inflation and also start setting aside money so that both employees and the state contribute equally.”

State health care benefits for retired employees remain one of the fastest growing areas of the state budget. In 2001, retiree health benefits made up 0.6% of the General Fund budget ($458 million) but today absorb 1.6% ($1.9 billion). Without action, the state’s unfunded liability will grow to $100 billion by 2020–21 and $300 billion by 2047–48. The budget addresses the need to develop solutions to correct this problem.

WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT

In addition, the budget proposes a major new approach to workforce development. There is $1.2 billion in funding to expand workforce training—supporting a coordinated regional framework for adult education, career technical education, workforce investment and apprenticeships.

“We are really looking to have a coordinated and regionally based system to make sure that our workers get the right training and our schools and educational entities are providing the right training for business and for these areas where job training can actually get people into a job,” Cohen said.

WATER

Turning to infrastructure, Cohen discussed funding for water projects. In addition to $533 million from the Proposition 1 water bond to continue implementing the administration’s five-year Water Action Plan for sustainable water management, the budget proposes spending the last $1.1 billion from the 2006 flood bond.

“This is all designed to prepare the state’s water infrastructure for the future and move toward better water sustainability,” Cohen explained.

TRANSPORTATION

The state’s largest deferred maintenance liability is on the state’s highways, bridges and other transportation infrastructure which totals $59 billion, Cohen pointed out. He reaffirmed the Governor’s commitment to addressing how the state will deal with needed state transportation improvements.

BUDGET CYCLE

In closing, Cohen reflected on the difficulties of the last few budgets and reiterated the Governor’s resolve to avoid the patterns of the past:

“It’s too easy to get back into budget deficits of tens of billions of dollars… what we’ve done over the last few years is really commit to those things we really feel we can continue to commit to for the long term and not over commit so that when the next recession comes, we’ll have some money in our rainy day fund and we won’t have made more ongoing commitments than we should have. We will be better prepared,” Cohen said.

LEGISLATIVE ANALYST

The report from the Legislative Analyst’s Office (LAO) commented that “the Governor’s reluctance to propose significant new program commitments outside of Proposition 98 could help avoid a return to the boom and bust budgeting of the past.”

Over the long run, eliminating the state’s liability for retiree health care would “significantly lower state costs, affording future generations more flexibility in public budgeting,” the LAO report stated.

The LAO repeated the Governor’s caution that current strong revenues “bolstered by a soaring stock market last year, may not continue for long.

“As the Governor argues, the budget remains vulnerable to downturns that may re-emerge with little warning. Building budget reserves and paying down state debts remain important goals.”

Networking Tip
OF THE MONTH

Email is easy to send ... and ignore. Yes, email is quick, simple, and can be sent to anyone, anywhere. It's also very easy to be filtered out and ignored. If you really want to meet someone, then don't be afraid to pick up the phone, propose a video chat, or arrange a face-to-face meeting. These communication channels are usually less crowded and more personal, which means that your message will be more memorable. Email can be a great tool, but don’t be afraid to mix it up.
