"The California Competes Tax Credit"

The California Competes Tax Credit is an income tax credit for “high-value” businesses growing in California. The purpose is to attract and retain California employers in industries with high economic multipliers that provide their employees good wages and benefits.

The credit is awarded through a two-phase competitive process, with three rounds of applications planned for FY 2014-15. The program is capped at $150 million for this fiscal year and $200 million for each of the next two fiscal years. Any business can apply, and 25% of the available credits are reserved for small businesses.

No Businesses are excluded from the program thereby eliminating the tendency to define and lobby for narrow interests – and the program serves attraction and retention purposes – limiting controversy associated with bestowing credits on out-of-state firms over valued in-state firms. The set-aside for small businesses also addresses the common criticism that incentive programs unduly favor large businesses at the expense of small companies.

The Governor’s Office of Business and Economic Development (GO-Biz) administers the California Competes Tax Credit (CCTC). This credit is available to businesses that want to locate or stay and grow in California. Tax credit agreements are negotiated between taxpayers and GO-Biz and are approved by the California Competes Tax Credit Committee (Committee). The Committee consists of the State Treasurer, the Director of the Department of Finance, the Director of GO-Biz, and one appointee each by the Speaker of the Assembly and Senate Committee on Rules.

There will be a number of CCTC workshops being held throughout the state during the year. For assistance in applying for the CCTC credit please visit the Governor’s Office of Business and Economic Development (GO-Biz).

My Vantage Point

The aging condition of the Redondo Beach waterfront is something that has lost the urgent and immediate attention of our community leaders for one reason or another. But that is about to change, and the timing could not have come at a more opportune period.

On July 21, the City Council reviewed a status report on the condition of the waterfront infrastructure and authorized staff to hire a consultant to evaluate the deteriorating condition of critical elements, starting with the crumbling parking structures at the pier.

What was most startling about this staff report is that regardless what the city does to revitalize the waterfront with or without CenterCal, someone will need to find somewhere between $37.5M to as much as $108M to replace the waterfront’s various public improvements and infrastructure.

With the CenterCal revitalization, as much as half of that amount of investment will be paid through the project. Without it, Redondo taxpayers will likely have to foot the bill years into the future. So from my vantage point, each of us has to decide who is going to pay. It’s just that simple.

For me, I don’t mind paying my “fair share” for public investments as long as everyone else does as well. But that’s the problem. Not everyone else can afford to pay for the tens of millions of dollars of public improvements for deferred maintenance that has been ignored and left to someone else to deal with. That’s the downside of this unfortunate situation.

On the upside, what the city has done for the first time is puts its arms around the complete and entire picture of what is needed along the waterfront even without any revitalization project. I can’t emphasize how incredibly important this step is to achieve significant additional reductions without impacting their core business. Accordingly, the company has established an alternative means of compliance with the water budgets for “industrial water users” with firm “process water” requirements that will help to minimize the impact of the State’s mandatory water-use reductions on their core business. For more information about this program, please visit www.calwater.com/processwater.

Cal Water also offers cash rebates for certain business purchases that reduce water use. And, in the near future, the company will begin offering water-use efficiency evaluations at no charge for business customers, where a trained water conservation expert will come to your business and help to determine how water could be used more efficiently. If you are interested in participating, please contact Dana Rasmusson at drasmusson@calwater.com or 310-257-1474 to be added to the waiting list.

Cal Water’s goal is to be an active partner and a resource Redondo Beach businesses can rely on to help reduce water consumption and ensure a reliable water supply, both during this historic drought and for generations to come.

California lawmakers approve equal pay protections for women

SACRAMENTO, Calif. – California’s state Assembly on Thursday, August 27 approved legislation aimed at closing the wage gap between women and men through what proponents describe as the strongest equal pay protection in the nation.

The bill by Sen. Hannah-Beth Jackson, D-Santa Barbara, would let female employees challenge pay discrimination based on the wages that the company pays to other employees at different locations. They could also base challenges on wages the company pays to other employees who do substantially similar work.

It would also bar companies from retaliating against employees who discuss or ask about pay at work.

Lawmakers on Thursday approved SB358 on a 66-2 vote. The bill now returns to the Senate for a final vote.

Gov. Jerry Brown’s executive secretary, Nancy McFadden, announced on Twitter that the Democratic governor would sign the legislation if it reaches his desk.

Supporters say California women were paid an average of 84 cents for every dollar men were paid in 2013.

The gap is significantly greater for minority women. According to the Equal Rights Advocates, which co-sponsored the bill, Latinas in California make only 44 cents for every dollar a white man makes while African-American women are paid 64 cents on the dollar.

Assemblywoman Cristina Garcia, D-Bell Gardens, presented Jackson’s bill in Assembly and said the proposal establishes the strongest equal pay law in the nation by going beyond federal anti-discrimination law. The bill strives to unveil secrecy surrounding pay, which Garcia says contributes to the gender pay gap.

“You can’t challenge what you don’t know,” Garcia said.

The measure won significant support from the California Chamber of Commerce and received bipartisan support.

“It’s been a long time coming,” said Assembly Minority Leader Kristin Olsen, a Modesto-area Republican. “It’s shocking that in 2015 we’re still having to work on this.”

Two Republican lawmakers voted no. Assemblyman William Brough of Dana Point and Assemblyman Matthew Harper of Huntington Beach did not return telephone messages for comment Thursday.

Succulent Maine Lobster is still center stage at the 20th Annual Redondo Beach Lobster Festival, Southern California’s original lobster festival. The event is sponsored by the Redondo Beach Chamber of Commerce & Visitors Bureau, an all-new slant on exclusive high-end dining, entertainment, craft beer and wine.

While dining variety still defines the Festival, visitors now have delicious choices in Maine lobster meals ranging from small plate FISHBAR Lobster Bistro favorites to individual fresh Maine lobster meals, Angus beef and lobster tail Surf and Turf, and Kincaid’s New England Lobster Boil, a three-course, hands-on experience for parties of from two to ten diners.

A craft beer tent will offer eight choices from national and local breweries, and a top flight line up of music kicks off Friday night with Doors guitarist Robby Krieger plus special guests. Saturday will see Bow Wow Wow, The Untouchables, Flashback Heart Attack along with a slew of other bands to be announced over the weeks to come. With Saint Rocke, the South Bay’s most popular music venue curating the lineup, the weekend spells festive lobster dining, beverages and a rocking great time for all.

Chef Jessica Jordan of FISHBAR Manhattan Beach has inspired this year’s Fishbar Lobster Bistro, which features small plates of lobster guacamole and chips, lobster rolls, lobster tacos, lobster grilled cheese, and much more.

Redondo Beach’s Seaside Lagoon | 200 Portofino Way

Kincaid’s Restaurant, just voted by USAToday.com as one of the “10 Best Restaurants in Los Angeles” is serving its traditionally sold-out, hands-on Kincaid’s New England Lobster Boil. Everyone at the table, reserved parties of 2 to 10, dig in to the three-course mouth-watering meal that starts with shrimp cocktail, warm artichoke with dipping sauces and crusty bread. That’s followed by Fresh Maine lobster, corn on the cob, garlic and potato, and Cajun sausage spread classic New England style in the middle of the table. Then comes the finale Kincaid’s famous Key Lime Pie. Access to the VIP area, overlooking the stage, is included, and private bar and VIP beverages are available.

Festival visitors will be able to savor their meals with fine wines, and craft beers from national and local breweries such as The Strand Brewing Co., El Segundo Brewing, and The Dudes. The tempo picks up with stand-up paddleboard demonstrations, and paddle boating for guests. Popular every year is the array of vendors selling jewelry, hats, and other must-have’s.

Working Toward a Healthier Community at The Waterfront

By Mickey Marraffino

From all of the great conversations we’ve had with community members over many, many months, we’ve learned that Redondo Beach residents take pride in living in a family-friendly and health conscious city.

We want to ensure that The Waterfront aligns with those values and initiatives already underway in Redondo and its surrounding cities to attain healthier lifestyles, one of which is the Blue Zones Project. Beach Cities Health District introduced the Blue Zones Project in 2010 as a community-wide approach to encouraging and motivating residents to adopt and maintain healthier lifestyles. The Project’s Livability Plan, which was unanimously adopted by the City of Redondo Beach in 2011, focuses on how to improve the quality of life in the Beach Cities through policies and programs that better support active living.

The scientific evidence is clear: walkable, bikeable and livable communities are also healthier communities.

Many of The Waterfront’s most important components exemplify the goals of the Livability Plan, whether it’s accessing The Waterfront or enjoying your time there.

There are ample ways to access The Waterfront, whether by bike, foot, car or public transportation.

We believe that people riding bicycles should have safe, convenient and comfortable access to all waterfront destinations. That’s why there will be an expanded bicycle path that seamlessly connects the entire waterfront along with ample bike racks and a bicycle valet to accommodate all cyclists, whether they’re passing through or stopping to hang out.

Further, we understand the importance of accommodating pedestrians. We are prioritizing widened walkways, easing the flow of vehicular traffic and plenty of green space to ensure an easily walkable and accessible area. Ultimately, we are working to create a system that encourages mobility for all.

Once you’re at The Waterfront, everything is right at your fingertips.

Livability is not only about the healthiest way to reach a destination. It’s also about what to do there once you’ve arrived. At The Waterfront, yoga on the beach, art exhibits, musical performances, restaurants, shops, greenways and much more will be all in one place, promoting the active lifestyles toward which we all strive.

For instance, The Waterfront will offer a variety of healthy food choices at cherished local establishments, new restaurants and the all-encompassing public market with farm to table offerings. Physical activity will be the norm on the green spaces, at the opened up lagoon, on the walkways and along bike paths, whether you choose high speed or leisure riding.

Redondo Beach is a wonderful community, and the Waterfront, in collaboration with many of the efforts and initiatives embraced by Redondo Beach residents, is working toward further encouraging a happy, healthy lifestyle.

The opinions expressed in this article are those of the author and are in any way to be taken as official position not of the Chamber.
Tip of the Month from Your Health & Wellness Committee

September is Disaster Preparedness Month

Disasters can happen at any time and with little to no warning; that’s why being prepared is so important! When it comes to disaster preparedness, you must realize that first responders will be unable to help everyone during disasters. Emergency responders do a great job keeping people safe, but they can’t do it alone. It may also be several days before they can reach your area. Therefore, we must all embrace our personal responsibility to be prepared.

The time to figure these things out isn’t during the earthquake, or after a tsunami warning has been issued. You should know the escape routes from your own home, including the more obscure ones. If you have kids, draw them a map and post it near their door. You should also plan where your family will regroup if you must evacuate your house. Pick one location right outside your home, and one outside the neighborhood, in case you must leave the area. Decide ahead of time where you would go in case of an evacuation.

If cell networks aren’t working, consider how will you let others know you are alright? The Red Cross recommends using an out-of-area emergency contact to have family members check in with, since it may be easier to make long distance calls. Everyone should also have a list of emergency contacts and local emergency numbers.

A Home Emergency Kit is also a necessity. FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) has a great list of basic emergency supplies: http://www.ready.gov/document/family-supply-list

The Redondo Beach Fire Department is offering their Community Emergency Response Team (C.E.R.T.) Academy, beginning September 10, 2015. A C.E.R.T. concept is based on increasing disaster preparedness awareness within the community by having a core group of trained individuals capable of assisting themselves, their family and their neighbors in the event of a disaster. To date, over 1000 individuals have received training. Are you ready? Visit http://www.redondo.org/depts/fire/cert_academy.asp.

Remember, being prepared for disasters is a shared responsibility. It takes the whole community working together to effectively prepare for, respond to, and recover from disasters and other emergencies.

Free Mindfulness Workshop, Oct. 15

Beach Cities Health District is hosting a free mindfulness workshop on October 15 at Mira Costa High School in Manhattan Beach. The workshop, which starts at 6 p.m., is open to the public and will be led by holistic educator and stress relief expert Gloria Kamler, of the UCLA Mindful Awareness Research Center.

Preregistration for the workshop is required. Sign up today at bchd.org to secure a seat.

Mindfulness can be defined as paying attention to the present moment—a practice that has been proved to reduce anxiety, depression and stress in people of all ages. Mindfulness also dovetails nicely with the Blue Zones Project Power 9 Principle “Downshift”—which encourages people to unwind and de-stress for increased longevity.

With that in mind, here is a Letterman-style top-10 list of reasons to adopt mindfulness practices in your daily life.

1. It changes the brain in a protective way. The mindfulness technique “integrative mind-body training” can result in brain changes that may protect against mental illness, according to University of Oregon research.
2. It could help people with arthritis better handle stress. While it doesn’t alleviate physical pain, mindfulness can reduce stress and fatigue in people with rheumatoid arthritis, according to the journal Annals of Rheumatic Disease.
3. It can make your grades better. Researchers at UC Santa Barbara found that students who practice mindfulness score better on verbal reasoning and have better memory recall.
4. It could lower your health care bills. People who practice meditation incur fewer medical bills, compared with who don’t practice the mindfulness technique, according to the American Journal of Health Promotion.
5. It helps us even when we’re not actively practicing it. Mindfulness keeps on benefiting your brain’s emotional processing long after you finish meditating, according to the journal Frontiers in Human Neuroscience.
6. It lowers depression risk among teens. A study at the University of Leuven shows that teens who practice mindfulness experience less stress, depression and anxiety.
7. It supports your weight-loss goals. Mindfulness training is considered to be an excellent strategy to support weight loss, according to 7 out of 10 psychologists surveyed by Consumer Reports and the American Psychological Association.
8. It helps you sleep better. Mindfulness training can not only help us better control our emotions and moods, but it can also help us sleep better at night, according to a University of Utah study.
9. It could help the elderly feel less lonely. UCLA researchers found that mindfulness meditation helped decrease feelings of loneliness among seniors and boosted their health by reducing the expression of genes linked with inflammation.

look into the future and determine the magnitude of the public investment that is going to be required and undertaken, not ignored. Its like buying a house fifty years ago and allowing everything to fall apart until someone comes along and condemns the property as too unsafe to occupy.

For me, I prefer to make improvements to my property as they are needed since it only improves my property value and those of others around me.

I hate to say “I told you so”, but that’s exactly what will happen once/if we ever see waterfront revitalization here in Redondo Beach. And for once, someone else will be able to pick-up the check for most of the costs.
