Worker’s compensation insurers have been notified by Insurance Commissioner Dave Jones of upcoming changes to the definition of “employee” and to who is an excluded employee as a result of recently signed legislation, Assembly Bill 2883. As of January 1, 2017, all business workers’ compensation insurance policies, including in-force policies, will be required to cover, among others, certain officers and directors of private corporations and working members of partnerships and limited liability companies that may be excluded from coverage under current law.

Under the law as it exists today, officers, directors and working partners generally are not required to be covered under a company’s workers’ compensation policy, unless they have elected to be covered.

Under AB 2883, the presumption is changed: Officers, directors and partners generally are required to be covered under the employer’s workers’ compensation policy.

There is a narrower definition of excluded officers, directors and partners who can still opt out.

For those who still meet the narrow exclusion, a waiver of rights must be signed under penalty of perjury stating that the person is a qualifying officer or director. The waiver must be filed with the employer’s insurer.

Insurance companies must identify and provide notice to each employer that may have employees who were previously excluded from coverage and are affected by the new law. Insurers also are required to determine and report the premium and loss experience associated with those who have not chosen to opt into the coverage.

It is important to note that the California Department of Industrial Relations (DIR) has indicated that this change in law applies to in-force policies as of January 1, 2017. Per the notice from the Insurance Commissioner:

Unless a duly executed waiver is received and accepted by the insurance carrier on or before January 1, 2017, any individual that had been exempted from coverage under the workers’ compensation policy, including but not limited to, an officer or member of the board of directors of a corporation, or an individual who is a general partner of a partnership or a managing member of a limited liability company, will need to be added to the coverage provided by the insurer until such time as a duly executed waiver is received and accepted by the insurer.

Employers who believe they may be affected by this change in law are encouraged to contact their workers’ compensation insurer or their workers’ compensation agent or broker.
California Legalizes Marijuana Use, But Employers Can Still Keep Workplaces Drug Free

On Tuesday, California joined several other states in legalizing recreational use of marijuana by adults. Proposition 64, also known as the Adult Use of Marijuana Act, legalized the recreational use of marijuana for adults 21 years old and over. The provisions related to the legalization of marijuana and workplace protections took effect November 9 — the day after the election.

Legalizing marijuana for recreational use is a significant change to current law. However, despite the passage of Proposition 64, several things will not change. For example, smoking or ingesting marijuana in public will remain unlawful, as well as smoking or ingesting marijuana in places where smoking tobacco is already prohibited. Similarly, driving under the influence of marijuana will remain illegal.

But what about smoking weed at work? When it comes to the workplace, California employers can take a deep breath of fresh air, because Proposition 64 maintains the status quo for employers seeking to maintain a drug- and alcohol-free workplace. In other words, employer policies related to drug possession, use and impairment as well as testing are not compromised with the legalization of marijuana use under Proposition 64.

Proposition 64 explicitly states that it is intended to “allow public and private employers to enact and enforce workplace policies pertaining to marijuana.” The initiative also provides that it will not be construed or interpreted to amend, repeal, affect, restrict or pre-empt:

“The rights and obligations of public and private employers to maintain a drug and alcohol-free workplace or require an employer to permit or accommodate the use, consumption, possession, transfer, display, transportation, sale or growth of marijuana in the workplace, or affect the ability of employers to have policies prohibiting the use of marijuana by employees and prospective employees, or prevent employers from complying with state or federal law (Section 11362.45 (f)).”

Therefore, even with the passage of Proposition 64, employers may continue to prohibit use, possession and impairment at work and may continue to test for use when appropriate. Proposition 64 is not intended to interfere with these workplace policies or practices.

Employers should use this time to review existing policies and remind employees not only about the company’s drug-free workplace policy and practices but also to specify that marijuana is also prohibited.

Chamber members can visit http://web.redondochamber.org/news/newsarticle.aspx?ArticleID=110 to get more details on Proposition 64 and how it affects employers.

Being an International Trade Gateway: The Importance of Trade to Redondo Beach!

After months of vicious campaign rhetoric, International trade has come under attack. As an international trade gateway, it is important for all to understand the significance that trade provides to the economy.

California is one of the 10 largest economies in the world with a gross state product of more than $2 trillion. International trade and investment are major parts of the state’s economic engine that broadly benefits businesses, communities, consumers and state government.

California has a very diverse economy, as does Redondo Beach. Our city and state’s prosperity is tied to exports and imports of both goods and services by California-based companies, to exports and imports through California’s transportation gateways, and to movement of human and capital resources.

In recent years, there has been a greater effort to help US and California based companies become exporters and take their products to the global marketplace. California leads the nation in attracting foreign direct investment (FDI), but continued growth in FDI and exporting will require maximizing existing state, federal and private sector resources, and implementing new trade- and investment-related initiatives.

In 2015, California based companies exported to 229 foreign markets. Exports from more than 75,000 California companies supported more than 775,000 jobs.

The Chamber continues to support free trade worldwide, expansion of international trade and investment, fair and equitable market access for California products and services abroad and elimination of disincentives that impede the international competitiveness of California business.

Although trade is a nationally determined policy issue, its impact on California is immense. Trade offers the opportunity to expand the role of California’s exports. In its broadest terms, trade can literally feed the world and raise the living standards of those around us.
Order the Mandatory 2017 California and Federal Employment Poster from the Redondo Beach Chamber and avoid potential fines and penalties.

The 2017 legislative session produced new laws that will affect California employers’ day-to-day operations and policies in 2017 and beyond. That’s because quite a few bills feature delayed or phased-in implementation. Some of the new laws, such as the minimum wage increase, make significant changes to California’s legal landscape. Other new laws make small changes to different parts of existing law or may affect only employers in specific industries.

Redondo Beach Chamber is making it easy for your business to comply with California’s labor laws. No matter how many employees you have in California, your business is required by law to post a current California and Federal Employment Poster in a central location.

To place your order please contact Mara Santos at 310.376.6911 ext: 24 or contact the Chamber at 310.376.6911.
Southern California’s regional economy was founded on an engineering feat that brought water from far away headwaters of the Colorado River and the Sierras hundreds of miles to the Southland. While our local water agencies are working hard to develop new regional supplies like recycled water and conservation, imported water still delivers more than half of the water needed for our region to continue to thrive and grow.

As the West approaches what could be a sixth year of drought, there is a growing sense of urgency to ensure we have reliable water supplies for businesses, families and communities into the future. This is why it is especially important for Southern Californians to be aware that after decades of population and economic growth, California’s water system is in critical need of an infrastructure upgrade.

Much of the water delivered to Southern California comes through the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta via the State Water Project (SWP). This system provides approximately one-third of the water supply to Southern California’s 19 million residents, and 100% of the supply to many residents in areas exclusively served by the SWP. But the Delta’s declining ecosystem and 1,100-mile levee system are increasingly vulnerable. An earthquake or major levee failure in the Delta could cut off this vital water supply for several years.

California WaterFix and California EcoRestore are comprehensive solutions proposed by state and federal agencies to ensure our state has a reliable water supply for years to come. These plans represent the most comprehensive effort in our state’s history to address the long-standing water system and ecosystem crisis in the Delta. The final environmental analyses for California WaterFix will soon be completed and a Record of Decision to approve the project is expected in the months ahead.

As these two projects advance, hundreds of civic and business organizations across the state are already on record to support California Water Fix. This project will support our $1.7 trillion economy, 25 million residents, nearly 3 million acres of agriculture and more than 750 diverse plants and animal species. Our organization has supported investing in a reliable State Water Project in the past, and we must stay engaged over the coming months to see that final approvals move forward on California WaterFix for the continued growth of our economy.

important that we understand how the choices we make about where we spend our dollars affects our daily lives.

When you patronize businesses in Redondo Beach, you increase city revenues in the form of taxes, which helps pay for many of our city services. Some of these services that are paid for, in part, by local sales taxes are the fire department, the police department, street maintenance, and the libraries. In addition, the more local sales taxes collected by our local businesses help keep local taxes and fees lower. So in an indirect way, when you buy goods and services from Redondo Beach businesses, you are essentially supporting all the city services we all have come to expect.

To find a list of local businesses that offer a variety of goods and services, feel free to visit the Chamber’s business directory at RedondoChamber.org.
We just wanted to take this opportunity to wish all Redondo Beach Chamber of Commerce members a happy holidays, and to thank you all for your generous support of The Waterfront over the past few years.

In particular, thank you for your work last year in developing CREW to educate volunteers to spread the word about The Waterfront. Thank you to the volunteers – we appreciate your hard work!

We are very excited about how The Waterfront will support the Redondo Beach economy and local businesses. According to independent market studies prepared for the Redondo Beach City Council, economic benefits would include:

- More than $3 million in annual tax revenue
- Over 2,500 new jobs
- An investment in excess of $100 million in upgrading public infrastructure in critical need of repair

We are also in active discussions with many existing tenants about being a part of The Waterfront – it just wouldn’t be The Waterfront without the unique personalities these local businesses bring.

Additionally, we are thrilled to announce that The Waterfront 3D model will have a new home in Redondo Beach by the end of the month! More details to come.

We look forward to our continued collaboration with the Redondo Beach Chamber, and to creating a waterfront that all residents of this wonderful community can enjoy for generations to come.

Happy Holidays!

Happy Holidays from The Waterfront Team!

Health & Wellness Committee Tip of the Month

Stress Management During the Holidays

The Holidays are here. Are you ready? Don’t let Holiday Stress get the best of you. Here are some helpful tips for keeping your cool this season.

Self-Care: This is a busy time of year for family, friends and socializing. If you don’t take care of yourself, you won’t enjoy it.
- Allow time for yourself. Being around people can be draining. Find your personal sense of balance.
- Relaxation is important on a daily basis. Give your mind and body time to recharge.
- Have Fun. ’Tis the season to be jolly. Make sure you get to enjoy it.

Managing Expectations: Do you feel pulled in too many directions? Here are some ideas on how to keep from getting overwhelmed.
- Look at your schedule and plan ahead. Do you really have time to send out Holiday Cards this year, put lights up, host a party, etc.?
- How many Holiday Parties do you HAVE TO attend?
- Prioritize what’s most important to you and still allows time for Self-Care and balance.
- Stay within your budget—you can’t please everyone. Remember, it’s the thought that counts.
- It doesn’t have to be a Hallmark Holiday. Make it what you want.
- Enjoy the moment. Be in the here and now. Today is a memory in the making.

Family: Holidays are a time for family, but it doesn’t have to be a time for stress.
- Those who can’t spend time with family can create a family of their own, i.e. time with friends or friends’ families, starting your own holiday tradition or volunteering to help others in need.
- Sometimes spending time with family can be stressful. Have a Plan B ready if things don’t work out well.
- Time with family can be time-limited. You don’t have to let time with family take up your entire holiday vacation.

Q&A: Meet BCHD’s New CEO

Tom Bakaly took the reins of Beach Cities Health District (BCHD) just weeks ago, following the retirement of long-time CEO Susan Burden, but already the former City Manager of Hermosa Beach reports to be living out his purpose by helping create a healthy beach community.

In the article below, Tom discusses — among a host of other topics — what local health issues BCHD plans to address; his experience working on world events like the 2002 Winter Olympics; and what lies ahead for the health of the Beach Cities.

Q: You helped organize the 2002 Winter Olympics, multiple Sundance Film Festivals, two Super Bowls and the World Cup during your career. How did those experiences shape you professionally?
A: “It’s a lot of work, but even more fun. Events were always something I gravitated toward; in fact, my old boss used to say I was like a ‘moth to a flame,’ because I wanted to be right in the middle of the action. Those experiences taught me a lot about teamwork and the importance of creating an organizational culture where all hands are on deck — which is right in line with the workplace at Beach Cities Health District.”

Q: Did you work with Mitt Romney on the 2002 Winter Olympics?
A: “I worked with him on several instances. He’s a to-the-point guy, no nonsense. Likable enough, bright and a pretty dynamic leader — but you didn’t want to make him angry.”

Q: Word has it you’re a big L.A. sports fan, so Trojans or Bruins?
A: “Trojans. I went to grad school there, and my whole family still attends football games — although I was born and raised right down the road from the Rose Bowl in Pasadena. I’m also a Dodgers, Lakers, Kings and big LA Rams fan from way back.”

Q: What compelled you to apply for the CEO position at Beach Cities Health District?
A: “A chance to be part of the solution and make a difference in my community. I was drawn to the opportunity to work for a respected organization that has a clear purpose and vision: to create a healthy beach community. Additionally, BCHD’s organizational culture and methodical approach to improving health, using research and measurement, really resonates with me.”

Q: Why work in community health?
A: “Community health just makes sense, and I find myself thinking about my own health more as I age, though I’m still a young 52. I was fortunate to be in a position in Hermosa Beach, and now at BCHD, where I could make a difference by supporting evidence-based efforts to improve public health, like stronger smoke-free policies, a social host ordinance to curb underage drinking and implementing Blue Zones Project to help people live longer. Now as I look at this opportunity with BCHD, I’m excited and honored have the chance to make a positive impact and cre-

We welcome you to the neighborhood!

Q: Can you expand more on your history with Blue Zones Project and smoke-free policies?
A: “Well, I supported both because, again, they made sense for our community. As a former smoker who quit more than 20 years ago, I know the importance of creating a healthy environment and the positive effect public smoke-free policies have on cessation and protecting people from second-hand smoke. And when Blue Zones Project came to my attention in 2012, I thought it was a no-brainer to get behind a community-wide, data-driven effort to create healthier schools, workplaces, public spaces and streets – not to mention it was a great chance to generate a little healthy competition with Manhattan Beach and Redondo Beach surrounding city certification.”

Q: What local health challenges are you eager to address?
A: “Ultimately, our goal at BCHD is to create an environment that supports healthy choices, because it’s all about personal choice. To achieve that, our Board of Directors recently outlined health priorities for the next three years, and the first one that jumps off the page to me is reducing the prevalence of teen substance use, especially among high school kids. That’s a challenge our community isn’t fully addressing yet, so that’s an area that needs more dialogue. And the other big issue is helping older adults age gracefully by providing them with necessary resources like transitional housing, dementia support and end-of-life planning.”

Q: What about the Beach Cities do you enjoy most?
A: “The culture, the beach, of course, but most of all the people and families who live here. They’re who make it a really special place to call home.”

Q: Anything else to add?
A: “A few years ago, I discovered my purpose is to do the next right thing. Well, Beach Cities Health District is that next thing for me. I couldn’t be happier.”

I am writing to let you know that being a member, even for the short amount of time (5 months since I joined?) has been invaluable to me and my business. I feel supported and part of the community more than ever. I feel like I have a voice and many advocates throughout the community, and that is so valuable to a small business just starting, especially with an acupuncture practice which is still so misunderstood among the population. It’s rare to find such a great group of people who want to see you succeed and whose success you truly care about.
